Enzymes speed the rate of chemical reactions. A catalyst is a chemical involved in, but not consumed in, a chemical reaction. Enzymes are proteins that catalyze biochemical reactions by lowering the activation energy necessary to break the chemical bonds in reactants and form new chemical bonds in the products.

Increasing the concentration of substrate and/or enzyme increases the rate of a chemical reaction up to a certain point. As the reaction continues and the substrate molecules are used up, the rate of the reaction will decrease regardless of any changes in enzyme concentration. By controlling enzyme and substrate

Enzymes are biological catalysts that function to speed up chemical reactions in living organisms. Enzymes work by decreasing the amount of activation energy needed to get a chemical reaction started. Figure 1 demonstrates the activation energy required for a chemical reaction with and without an enzyme.
